

HEIRS

OF THE PLANET - NARIÑO - COLOMBIA

The heirs of the planet are a group composed by children and young people who inhabit rural regions of the Nariño Department in Colombia, we call ourselves that way because we carry out actions to conserve all forms of life, water, ecosystems and traditions of our territories supported by the Associative Mingas and the ADC Peasant Development Association.

Meeting with the knowledge and flavours of the region

Yacuanquer, Nariño. October 2018.

With great success the fifth "Children and youth Meeting of flavors and traditional knowledge" was carried out by the Association for the Peasant Development ADC with support from the City Hall conducted in Yacuanquer on October 28. At Cultural encounter 320 children participated and young members of 17 groups of Heirs of the Planet of eight municipalities from the department of Nariño.

This event, in addition to promoting good feeding practices in youth, manages to rescue the knowledge base of the Nariño peasant culture, as well as generating a proposal to exchange experiences and publicize new ways of transforming agricultural products such as cassava cake recipes, pea meatballs, arracacha cake, elderberry jam, among other delicious preparations prepared by the Heirs of the Planet.

The Integral Training Cycle for rural youth is a popular education space aimed at the youth population that is part of the Heirs of the Planet process. In 2018, the meeting had as its central theme: "The production and responsible consumption of food" and was attended by 30 young people from different municipalities of Nariño.

The training cycle leverages and motivates the new leaders of the peasant and indigenous communities to become qualified in essential subjects to support community initiatives, such as social work, food security, and the conservation of biodiversity, among others.

Its main purpose is to exchange experiences in agricultural production from local knowledge, in response to the need to produce and consume food in a sustainable manner.

The young Heirs of the Planet assume these training spaces with responsibility, strengthening the network of groups in different areas of the department and increasing the levels of affection through the exchange of knowledge that allows them to build alternatives around rural culture, identity and the production of food with agro-ecological principles.
